HENRY COUNTY.

Business and the Corn Supply in Henry County-Martinsville Items-The Tobacco Business—The Temperance Question.

[Correspondence of the Richmond Dispatch.]

MARTINNVILLE, VA., July 22, 1884.

Business is as dull here and in this county as it is anywhere in the tobacco region; but "if herse can live till grass come," it is expected there will be a glorious revival, for better crops of wheat were never made, and better crops of oats, corn, and tobacco were never growing at this season of the year. The scarcity of corn has added to the depression, the drought of last summer having cut that crop so short that but for the railroad a supply of corn could not have been had. "There were not wagons enough in the county," says an old citizen. "to have hauled from Danville as much corn as people needed."

This place, which was once about to be called Henry City, and but for Mr. L. S. Thomas, of the Martinsville Herald, would have been, has become quite a growing little city under the influence of the railroad. But it has not yet issued any bonds. The evidences of growth are the many, new residences, the establishment of warehouses (two) and tobacco-factories, the opening of a bank, livery-stables, brick-yards, sawmills, a well-patronized graded school, new churches, and the prosperity of its newspaper. The Ruffner Institute (the graded school) building is a handsome frame house, two stories high, with rooms for the four paper. The Ruffner Institute (the graded school) building is a handsome frame house, two stories high, with rooms for the four teachers and a large number of scholars. The Preshyterians are faishing a brick church and so are the Disciples, and the Baptists, with a subscription already of about $856, are prespecting.

about $806, are prospecting.

The building of factories and warehouses here indicates that the trade of the place will grow, and a probable transfer, to a considerable extent, of the tobacco-business considerable extent, of the tobacco-business from the country to the town. Apart from the other advantages of doing the tobacco-business in town, it has begun to appear that the buyers of stock find it better to get it on the floor of the warehouses than bargain for it at the barn-door. But the Henry planters, notwithstanding the attractions of the Martinsville and Danville markets, have, as they have had for years, a home market are onest the country manufacturers. market amongst the county manufacturers, and those manufacturers have found the business profitable. Here is one firm that claims to have cleared $25,000 in the last claims to have cleared $25,000 in the last twelve months.

"Mr. Blank," said a young p'anter to me, about ten miles from town, "won't you have some whiskey before dinner?" He had a pitcher of it as clear as spring water.

"Well, I beg pardon," he continued.

"Taking you to be a drummer, I thought you would take something, and it's harvest time," "Whiskey in this county?" said I. "Oh," said he, "we take a su'scription of five gallons each for ourselves and neighbors and send over the mountains for a hundred gallons at a time." It is a jake in the county that a merchant who lived near the line of Pittsylvania county rolled his house over into Pittsylvania and opened his house over into Pittsylvania and opened a saloon. But it is, as I have before said, "a dry county," and Judges Hairston and Ford, backed, it is said, by more than a majority of the people, are determined to keep it "a dry county." One of the oldest citizens, who was for many years a public officer, cannot recol-lect that there was ever a white man bung in this county.

There were only two delinquents on acount of taxes in the Irisburg township the last financial year. Mrs. Kate Baker (maiden name Kager), who lives near Howardsville, is now ninety-nine years and some months old, and is quite cheerful and can walk about the house.

Mr. R. D. Ray, who lives near Ridge-way, is now eighty-five years old, and was in the war of 1812 as substitute for Jack Burgess. He is quite an active man now. Colonel William A. Sheffield, near Ridge-Colonel William A. Shelicid, near Ruigeway, who was for years in business for Colonel Jesse Wootton, sheriff of this county, is now seventy years old. He has prospered much in business, and being now largely engaged in milling and farming, spends the forenoon mostly on horseback and the afternoon with his family and back and the afternoon with his family and in resting, receiving calls on business and frem friends, and reading the Daily Dispatch and other good papers.

Mr. J. Tony Stovall, who once represented the district of Henry and Patrick in the State Schate, owns a fine farm in this county. He is at present at Fort Worth, Texas, and writes that if the people of

in his buggy and made a return accord-Mr. E. B. Turner, an influential citizen and once a Coalitionist, says he gave Colo-nel Cabell his first lift and will lift him again, and "cannot vote for Jim Blaine."
Some of the old Democrats say that some of the Relidjusters are following Mr. Massey, though at a long distance, and will catch up by November. It was not understood, however, what position Judges Ford and Hairston and Mr. Sam. Sheffield would take. The Democrats claim them. Judge Whittle is looked upon as the leading Democrate control of the state of the sta ocrat in Henry, and many say he will some day lead more than the Henry county Dem-ocrats, and be put into Congress. The campaign issues of the leading papers are bring subscribed for freely and read with

The old True-Vine church, at Irisburg, is now, at a cost of about $400, being made to look almost as good as new.

At Cascade, a Pittsylvania village just on the border, there is a new Presbyterian church almost completed, at a cost of about $1,300, and a new Baptist church completed and paid for at a cost of $1,300. At the same place, Captain C. W. Venable has built a tobacco-factory, 46 by 80 feet, and three and one half stories high, with an outfit of hydraulic presses. The people around this place make wheat for market, have large and excellent orchards, and no sickness. Captain Venable says he has under his supervision 120,000 hills of tobacco, and two thirds of it is ready to be topped.

ORANGE COUNTY.

An Intricate Case—Political—The Wheat.
[Correspondence of the Richmond Dispatch.]
ORANGE COURTHOUSE, July 22, 1834.
The special object of the term of the court being held by Judge Dickinson at the time of his death was to try some old cases growing out of the administration of the "Orange Humane Society," an association founded many years before the war, to execute a benevolent bequest of a Mr. Monroe for educational purposes. A former special term for the same purpose, held at Charlottesville, was as suddenly terminated by the sudden illness of Hon. James W. Green, of Culpeper, one of the leading counsel in the case, which illness also came to a fatal end. Many land-titles in Orange are clouded until final decision is had, and the proverbial "chancery suit" seems longer than ever.

The Chicago nominations are favorably received here. The county will select delegates to the Congressional Convention next Monday (court day), but so far as I have heard there is no opposition to the renomination of Mr. Barbour. Hon. Holmes Conrad is announced to address a ratification meeting at Madison Court next Thursday. He is prominently mentioned as a candidate for Congress in that district. Without prejudice to the other candidates it goes without saying that Major Conrad would make an admirable representative.

There has been unusual mortality in the county this year, and many of our most esteemed and substantial citizens have gone to their last homes, the last death in the neighborhood being that of the wife of Further, he charged that the leaders of the Democracy were responsible for the murder of the colored people at Danville "as much so as if they carried the blood of the murdered men upon their sleeves." He made the inquiry of his audience if they wanted these men to govern them, and also asked: "Have you heard of the shot-gun policy of the to govern them, and also asked: "Have you heard of the shot-gun policy of the Legislature?" He referred to the turning out of Senator Webb and the seating of Keezle, and asked his audience to bear these things in mind, remembering that the result of this election will have a great influence upon the election of next year, when State officers are to be elected. A special term of the Circuit Court closed last night. The court had been in ession eight days. A great dead of business was before the court, but only two cases of any importance.

A prominent Richmond lawyer in attendance on court, and who is supposed to know what is going on in the political world, in speaking of the chances of an extra session of the Legislature, said that Governor Cameron was in correspondence with Judge Robertson on the subject, and would be guided by his opinion. He further said that the Straightout senators would sign the call for an extra session if the Democrats would not undertake to pass any bills of a political character, such as Changing the election laws of the State.

Politics here at present are quiet, but things are beginning to boom a little in York county. Leveland and Hendries take well in this section, and will receive the united support of the party.

he did not notice that it was growing late, and the sun was tow before he became aware of it. He then hurried homeward, reaching the old farm about 6 o'clock. He took the short cut through the farmyard, when suddenly the ground, as he thought, gave way beneath him, and the next instant he found himself floundering in water. He regained his feet, and as soon as he could collect his senses, began feeling around to find out if possible where he was. He stood in water up to his waist, and it was exceedingly cold. With the exception of a stream of dim light he could see above him, all was as derk as night. Etween the June and July terms of the d cont. This action makes it more than ever nemust make his way up by clambering on one side alone, or remain in the well until his critical position might be discovered,

the chances of which he feared were very

the chances of which he feared were very remote for that night be discovered,
the chances of which he feared were very remote for that night at least, and he doubted the possibility of his being able to sustain himself many hours in the condines of the well. After several attempts he succeeded in drawing himself out of the water, one chink in the wall affording him a footing while he felt carefully about for another. By the fast disappearing streak of light above the boy could judge that the surface was not many feet alove him, and he said that as he slowly approached the top he prayed caracestly for strength to reach it. The assent was slow and painful. The boy's fingers were tern by the sharp stones as he clutched his way upward, and he could feel the blood come out from under the raviers above him and drew binself to the places he found for his toes to rest on. His progress was so slow that the streak of light had entirely disappeared before he had been able to get within reaching distance of the opening strough while he places he found for his work of this strace, there was no more chink in the wall and one more step upward of his facers in one more than white the could see that he shad on the surface, when he could easily draw hinself out. He reached one hand attitudy upward to find a crevice, and ther was none. A large, smooth stone fill did the space above him, At either side of it, just within his reach, there was a chink, but to make them of service to him he must edge along the face of the wall in order to tring his feet directly in under the crevice above. Unless he could do this be w begin the fatiguing and perilous ascent again, but the thought of the agony of his parents at his long and unaccountable absence nerved him to another effort. For nearly three hours he struggled for liberty, and at last, when almost fainting from exhaustion, he felt his hands grasp the upper edge of the wall, and, concentrating all his remaining strength in one last effort, he drew himself out on the ground. effort, he drew himself out on the groun and knew no more until he heard his father's voice calling him. It was 10 o'clock when Farmer Beiler

Found Among the Crags.

A Shick Shinny (Pa.) special says: Michael Boylen, of Teasdale City, was looking for young fexes along a ledge of rocks on the opposite side of the river from this place yesterday when he was startled by finding a ghastly skeleton under one of the projecting crags. The body was that of a man six feet tall, and lay upon its back. The shoes were still on the feet, although it is believed the bones, from their bleeched condition, have lain exposed for three or four years. The shoes were those of a laboring man.

WISE VERSUS BIGGER, CLERK,

Mandamus Rule Awarded to July 31st on Re apportionment-Bill Question. On the petition of Hon, John S. Wise, who prays the Supreme Court of Appeals of Virginia to award a mandamus direct as | ing John Bell Bigger, Keeper of the Rolls.

ing John Bell Bigger, Keeper of the Rolls, to strike from the rolls the act of Assembly commonly known as the congressional reapportionment bill, the Court, sitting at Wytheville, vesterday awarded a mandisus rule against Bigger, returnable July 31st.

Judge Hinton dissented.

In this way it is sought to bring in question the validity of the congressional reapportionment. The point upon which they rely is that when the bill was passed General Wickham was present in the Senate but not voting, having been excused, and that if he is, as they contend he should be, counted as present the bill did not pass by the necessary vote—two thirds of the members present—over the Governor's veto.

The character is wellet Me. Without the strength of the members present—over the Governor's veto.

Mr. R. T. Hubard had gone to Wytheville This action makes it more time ever accessing that there should be a called session of the General Assembly on August 13th, and all the signatures necessary have now been secured. The demand upon the Governor, signed as required by the Constitution, will probably be presented to him at Old Point in the course of the next few days.

Mr. Geo. Brown, after being in business here as a youth in the bouse of Perkinson & Harris, left Virginia for Kentucky, and from there went to New Orleans, and from New Orleans to Mobile, in which last-named city he resided for a great many years, and until 1855, when he returned to this city, and ever after remained here, living a very quiet life and engaged in no business. He was never married. About ten years ago his brother, Dr. Brown, died, leaving his cstate in three parts—to deceased, to his brother, A. Spiers Brown, of New York, and to the children of his sister—Mr. John P. and Dr. A. Spiers George and Mrs. F. M. Boykir, and Mrs. Dr. R. G. Crouch—and after the death of these to the building and endowment of an asylum here for white foundlings. Now, by the death of Mr. Brown, one third of the estate goes to the asylum.

Mr. Brown, one third of the estate goes to the asylum.

The deceased was a gent'eman of fine business sense, and even until his last illness, the culmination of gradual paralysis, had a wonderful memory. Those who knew him intimately speak of him as a most lovable character. The hour of his funeral will be announced as soon as his brother in New York is heard from.

The shoes were still on the feet, although it is believed the bones, from their bleeched condition, have lain exposed for three or four years. The shoes were those of a laboring man.

Near the bones were found a razor and strap, shaving-mug. briar-pipe, pocket-knife, bunch of keys, and two bottles—one a half-pint pocket flask and the other a two-ounce vial, such as is used for laudanum. This, probably tells the story of suicide. The frame of a valise was found near by. The only clue as to the man's identity is that a person of his height was a temporary boarder at the Meuntain Inn, a disreputable place a mile distant. The spot is half a mile from the road leading from Shick Shinny to Wanamie. An investigation will be made.

Sanitary Regulations in Cholera.

Dr. C. W. Chanceller, secretary of the State Beard of Health of Maryland, furnishes the Baltimore papers the following:
In caties or towns the streets should be whatever, and the guiters frequently washed with running water. In no yard or open lot should any collection of animal or vegetable matters be allowed to remain, nor any cesspool be left unfilled with clean earth.

Cellars should be kept dry and clean, and the sinks weit cleaned out and disinfected with a strong solution of chloride of lime or copperas. These substances should also be sprinkled over the floors of cellars, such as a such control of the sinks weit cleaned out and disinfected with a strong solution of chloride of lime or copperas. NEWARK, N. J., July 22.—The Virginias defeated the Domestics by a score of thrteen to three here to-day, in the presence of two thousand people. The home team made errors, but ther were completely outplayed. Powell was hit by the pitcher in the third and sixth innings; the last time he was hit on the right forearm and it was at first thought his arm was broken. The Dugans played a fine game and won frequent applause. The Domestics were compelled to change their battery on the sixth inning, but the result was not changed. Appended is the score:
